In principle, trapping adorable rotund bugs to feed them in birds is not my idea of a fun game. I love beautiful things, and I don't like to watch or make them die. But I quickly got on my ethical flu about killing small criteria when I started playing Bubble Grubble HD, a new game by Fan Studio for the iPad and iPhone that works with iOS 4.3 and later. At first, it's easy to draw a comparison between this family-friendly game and Angry Birds. They both physical puzzle-based games and Bird take a wire role -- but Bubble Grubble is definitely no imitator. The main point of the game is to take bugs into bubbles, then feed the bugs in your chicken so they can fly away. When all of the baby birds leave the level, you move to the next level. Bubble me up: Bugs shoot and take them in bubble, then until your device feeds them to the birds. To take the species - bugs ambiguous and demolish obstacles that stand in your way, there are three types of weapons: bullets, rocks, and pots. Use rocks to shoot and destroy wood, glass, or diamonds, and use the bombs to demolish concrete, which will earn you dots and help clear the way. Save the little balls to capture the traps—they will not be good for many other things. To change your weapon of choice, type the appropriate icon at the bottom right of the screen. Aim, and shooting isn't tapped. Once you have captured a bug, until your device carries it directly into a baby's mouth. The bubble/bubble will pop and the bird will fly away, as you don't leave the bubble pop before it reaches the bird. It's like balancing on an earthquake. With one trunk tilt, your bubble might pop when you don't want it in. They won't burst on their own, but beware of things like crowd and weight and sharp stingers. When you accidentally run into one of them, your bubble will burst and the bugs will die before you can eat any of the birds. If this happens to you three times, you have to restart the level. Pan Away: Blockade clear of your path with rocks and pots, earning points in the process. While there's a bug trapped in a bubble, you can't shoot anything else. So, for example, you will not be able to multitask and destroy obstructions while you feed the birds. That makes the game more difficult, and it forces you to plan ahead. At one point while playing the game, I captured a bugs, but was not hostage away from all of the wood panel and gems. The bubble was stuck floating around, and I was the purpose of pop the bubble and lost a life in order to shoot the objects in my way so I could feed the chicks. With some games, it doesn't matter if you're playing on an iPhone or iPad, but Bubble Grubble is easier to lobbied on an iPhone. Half the game involves tiling your device, which is more physically laboured with the iPad. It's not impossible to play on an iPad — and, in my experience, definitely still fun — but the smallest iPhone is easier to move. However, the scenes are crisp and clear on both devices, and I experience any problems with virgin graphics or response delays. The only minor thing that annoyed me was when I tried to shoot down, and accidentally changed my gun type instead. The Pranaway? When you're aiming almost directly down, don't tap too close to the ground. It's an adjustment that the player has to do, but can be hard to remember when the penetration goes down. You can download the app for free and get ten levels, or pay $2 and receive more than 80 levels of games. I would recommend spending the two towns. For each level, you are given a certain number of stars based on your performance. So even if you finish all of the easy levels, your competitive side will probably be attracted to play the whole game again. Most times, I merely eked by and received no stars. Finding three stars per level is definitely something to work up to, and it's an endeavor that will offer you and way more players. Overall, Bubble Grubble is a fun game for a wide range of people. He won't be afraid away from the casual game, but he also won't be making a pro more seasoned. The concept is simple but kirky, graphics are circles, and the combination of collages and tapped keeps things interesting. [Brie Hiramine is an internal Macworld editorial. It might not be the final laptop piece, but with the public revealing hopes to be at WWDC this June and shipping date soon after that, it's close. We'll go on the purpote expansion in a post to follow, but now we'll focus on the design. Some will complain it doesn't look Apple-like, doesn't look like something that came out of the Trek-style star lab of Apple Please design, Jonathan Ive. We thought too at first, when all we had to go on were the pics of the initial post. We thought it looked like a hit to Japine that cut. We were wrong. Photos posted at hands-on today have been clearer and show the most cleaner lines with a more in harmonious design and other major releases Apple's make recently -- unique MacBook Pro, 2009 iMac, 2010 iPad. Sure, they typically have subtle curve together one big surface — back to the iMac, behind in the iPad, and this iPhone HD looks flat as a copper, but the language is unmistakable. Especially, yes, the breaks of aluminum in the siding. Screws in the iPhone 3GS and iMac is one thing, but breaks in the aluminum? It's possible that people had to give easy access to the prototype container and will disappear when Steve Job pulled the final production model from him at WWDC. Or it's possible that people with access to the vessels and are a compromise we'll see up to and after release. (We choose to believe the former rather than the letter, of course). Also, the volume buttons. Gone are the toggles found in the first three generations of iPhone, the last two in touch iPod, and one and only iPad to date. In concrete locations that resemble the battery level indicator from a MacBook Pro [tip of the @richardlai hat] as seen in double vision. Gizmodo know/guess they will have to serve as additional, countenance piece buttons. Specifically, that when in camera mode (where volume is not needed) they would serve as a tricky short button to take pictures or start/stand video recordings. An toggle could perform multiple functions as well, however, though perhaps less intuitively. If we go through the list, however, we have the rounded rectangle with the hard angles, the glass at the very edge, and the dark aluminum and aluminum that has become this generation of Apple brands. This takes us. Now it's time for you. WWDC is still well over a month away, when it comes to iPhone HD/ iPhone 4G design, what do you expect Apple to keep the same, and what do you really want they would change? Input Analysis (General) Want to add some personality to your device? Creating a wallpaper can be a fun and creative way of showing off your style. This article will tell you how you can start from one square and create a background for your device that is uniquely yourself. Whether you consider yourself art or not, it's always great when you can have complete creative freedom. Canva is a free app with paid upgrades that allows you to create any size design and use its components or upload your own. So this process can be a fun way to show your personality. Before you start — download the Canva app is a great app that will let you create your own wallpaper from scratch, use a template or modify templates that are already created. You can also use the templates to have and modify them anyway you want, but this app is a great tool to start with an empty patch. Here's how to start creating your mastery on your iPhone or iPad. Open the App search for Canva by pressing the query icon. Or download the Canva app directly. Open the application by hitting Open in the App Store. Create an account or log in with Facebook or Google. You should now be able to see where you can create different designs by using the templates or by using custom dimensions. How to find the dimensions for your Apple product Canva requires you to enter the pixel report for your Apple product. This information you might find on Apple's website is watching your specific product. However, here is a quick reference if you're like 99 percent of others and don't know this number in mind. iPhone: iPhone SE: 1136 x 640-pixel resolution iPhone 6s / 7/8: 1334 x 750-pixel resolution iPhone 6s Plus / 7 Plus: 1920 x 1080 - pixel resolution iPhone X and XS: 2436 x 1125-pixel resolution iPhone XR: 1792 x 828 - pixel resolution iPhone XS Max: 2688 x 1242 -pixel resolution iPad: i MiniPad (all models), 5th Generation and iPad Air (1st gen and 2): 2048 x 1536 - pixel resolution iPad (9.7in): 2048 x 1536 - pixel resolution iPad Pro (10.5in) and iPad Air : 2224 x 1668-pixel resolution iPad Pro (11in): 2388 x 1668-pixel resolution iPad Pro (12.9in): 2732 x 2048-pixel This resolution will allow you to have the perfect size wallpaper for your Apple products. No more crops or tweaking your photos. How to size your design for Canva once you've downloaded the app and found the size of your design, it's time to put these dimensions in and view your blank fabric. Once you've downloaded the app and found the size of your design, it's time to put those dimensions in and view your blank fabric. On your iPhone or iPad it is the same process to put this information in. Select Custom dimensions. Use the pixel size for your Apple products from the table above. Inverting the two numbers for the width is the smallest number and the height is larger for a wallpaper portrait. Click Create. At this point, you'll see a beautiful blank cloth for your creative mind to make its magic. Creating the design here is the fun part. You can add templates, pictures, text, background, etc. Make this as simple or complex as you want. Creating a wallpaper with this app is kind of like art and crafts projects for the tech world. iPhone: Create your design. Add elements by selecting the more (+) icon in the bottom right corner. After finishing the design, click the download icon in the upper right corner. iPad: Create your design. Add elements by selecting the options on the left. After finishing the design, click the download icon in the upper right corner. You are almost there! After you are happy with your design, and you have downloaded your creation, it will appear in your picture. Wear the congregation wallpaper! You have created your design and it is now time to set it as your wallpaper, lock screen or both. Here is how you can finish the process on your iPhone or iPad. Go to Your Settings. Tap Wallpaper. Tap Select a new Wallpaper Featured All Pictures. Select your custom design. Set it as  Lock screen, Home screen or both.  At this point you should have an amazing wallpaper that you created. There are other apps out there that will allow you to create your own design, but none of them compare to Canva. It is free, simple to use and is available on almost every platform. Have a question?
